HONGKONG, AUGUST 28th, 1906.

The Bishop's reference to the abolition of slavery, in his anti-opium sermon which we reported yesterday, serves to start once more a train of thought leading to various reflections concerning the nature of what is called "national conscience". We have frequently drawn attention to the sentimental character of many of its more recent demonstrations, and it may be we have unwittingly confirmed the impression, apparently held in many minds, that this sentimentalism is a new attribute of civilised society. It is not, although many writers appear to consider that it has become much more pronounced in the last two generations. There will not be wanting scoffers to declare that the promptings of the national conscience often rest on humbug or hypocrisy; but we incline to the less harsh view that the extreme sentimentalists are victims of a form of self-deceit. They undoubtedly mean well, let us forbear the familiar reference to a pavement of good intentions, and remember that their ethical arguments to begin with have our universal approval, and that we split only when it comes to ways and means of giving effect to them. Offhand, nearly every decent thinking man is ready to affirm that Great Britain could consistently take no other action than that she took in connection with slavery. Truth, however, has more than one side for some whose claim to honour is as just as the average obscure person's. Professor SKRINE has recorded his opinion that England's part in the emancipation of slaves in 1833 was due to "a fit of national hysteria", and that it had evil results as well as good. Supposing, however, that what was done was altogether the right thing to do, it is a pity that it could not have been accompanied by the emotionalism which history teaches has been responsible for as much national crime as virtue. The bishops should warn the people against spasmodic piety, instead of inciting semi-pious spasms. It is not pleasant to remember that if Professor SKRINE be right, England did its duty in a burst of emotion caused by reading a work of fiction—the imaginary sorrows of Uncle Tom were invented to make impossible the real sorrows of real persons, which would presumably have appeared less romantic, and so less likely to touch the national conscience. Years later, Mr. GLADSTONE, with his Bulgarian atrocities pamphlet, fanned into flame another of these hysteric ebullitions due to artificially stimulated consciences. This week's telegrams show us Bulgaria beset on three sides, and it is no exaggeration to say that from prior to Mr. GLADSTONE's public cultivation of the national sentimentality to the present day, things have been constantly occurring there which as humanitarians we are bound to deplore. The great moral indignation of that particular time was due, it will be remembered, to the emphasis put on certain unsavoury aspects of "man's inhumanity to man". To paraphrase a remark of one of MARK TWAIN'S French duellists, it is not death that the national conscience feels, but mutilation. A British computer may nearly exterminate a rebellious tribe during a well directed campaign, and the nation will attend services of thanksgiving; but let him flag or bring a few rebels, as an example tending to prevent fresh slaughter, and the national conscience is up in arms against such "methods of barbarism". The British Press is the worst tubthumper of them all, in respect of this illogical emotionalism; probably, as the vox populi, it cannot help itself. But it was curious to watch how after a romantic crime in Madrid—was mean a crime committed under circumstances that added a flavour of romance to the outrage—they raised an outcry against anarchy and anarchism; while all the while, and to a unit, they were expressing sympathy with the cause of Russia's revolutionaries. To avoid political sentimentalism is not to ignore our duty to our neighbour. Unfortunately, those who at home at present are so readily declaring various things "morally indefensible," as a rule seem to be concerned with their duty to their neighbour's neighbour, a somewhat different thing.

Admiral Rodjensky is reported seriously ill. A Belgian company asked permission to install electric tramways in Peking, but the application has been refused. A contemporary says that the statue of Queen Victoria in Bangkok is becoming an object of veneration to some of the people, who bow to it in the same way as to the figure of Buddha.

A mechanic on board one of the French torpedo boats was drowned in the Saigon river a few days ago by falling overboard during the course of exercises. During the whole of last week there was only one case of plague, and very little other disease. As the returns since Saturday were also "blank", the plague totals now stand at 890 cases and 333 deaths.

Tennis has become a popular pastime in Hanoi. A local journal remarks that this game was once confined to the "chick" class, but now it is played by all sorts in the French community.

King Sisowath of Cambodia has returned from his French trip, which he seems to have enjoyed. On the homeward journey, it is stated, he did little but smoke opium in his cabin.

The return of visitors to the City Hall Library and Museum for the week ending the 26th Aug. 1906, shows that of non-Chinese there were 333 to the Library and 91 to the Museum; and of Chinese 163 to the former and 2,338 to the latter. The Library was, therefore, used by 496 persons and the Museum by 2,429.

Mr. J. Dorasmi, the Indian violinist, who was introduced to Hongkong audiences by Sandow, made his debut in London at the Beethoven Hall on the 17th July. He played the last movement of Mendelssohn's Concerto, for which he secured an encore, and Raff's Cavatina. His method of holding his violin caused considerable surprise, and the Daily Mail critic "failed to see the advantage of it either in tone or execution." However, Mr. Dorasmi himself declares that he cannot adopt the usual method, and it is gratifying to read that he "certainly did exceedingly well." He has secured a very lucrative engagement in America, which will extend, it is believed, over some six months.

The return match between Kowloon Bowling Club and the Civil Service Club takes place on Saturday. Practically the teams, as already given, will play.

Two fatalities are attributable to the thunderstorm which passed over Hongkong on Sunday. A cook at Hingham while preparing the midday meal was struck by lightning and killed instantly. A similar fate befel a youth in charge of a sampan.

The Kowloon Cricket Club have arranged for a concert to be held on Saturday evening, 1st prox., at the Club ground, Austin Road. We are informed that the cream of local talent will assist in the entertainment. Further particulars will appear to-morrow.

Though the recent fracas between Indians and Chinese at Yau-mat has intensified the feelings of animosity between the two peoples there, the extra precautions of the police have prevented a recurrence of the disturbance. An outbreak was expected on Saturday, but the report so far is that all is quiet in the neighbourhood.

The adjourned pairs contest between Messrs. D. Harvey and W. Russell and Messrs. Panchoon and R. H. Baxter for silver spoons was completed on Kowloon Green last night. The latter couple won by 21 shots to 19. The other winners of spoons were Messrs. J. C. Gow and T. Parris and Messrs. Hunter and A. R. Kinross.

The Throne has sanctioned the propositions for the establishment of national paper works and printing offices at Peking, Tientsin, and Shanghai. The paper factory will produce European paper, like Chinese paper, for the use of the diverse administrations of the Empire. The printing works will be exclusively reserved for printing the necessary books for the public and private schools and colleges. Europeans and Japanese will be appointed to direct these national establishments.

Herr Geheimrat Riedler, a distinguished professor of the Charlottenburg Technical College, declares that both the German navy and the German mercantile marine have been extremely backward in adopting the use of turbines. Prof. Riedler has published interesting statistics to bear out his contention regarding Germany's lack of enterprise in this respect. There are 46 ships in the British Navy, including four large battleships and four first-class armoured cruisers, driven by turbines. The Japanese navy contains three battleships and the American navy four cruisers driven by turbines. The German navy, on the other hand, contains only one small cruiser, and one torpedo-boat driven by turbines. The British mercantile marine contains 14 large ocean-going steamships and 22 passenger steamships plying between England and Ireland and the Continent driven by turbines. Japan is building two large ocean-going liners, and American companies are building five ocean-going steamships driven by turbines. The German mercantile marine contains only one vessel driven by turbines.

HONGKONG VOLUNTEER RESERVE ASSOCIATION.

The third monthly competition for the China Mail Cup at disappearing targets took place on the 25th August, when some good scores were made. Mr. P. P. J. Wedehouse making a "possible," while several scores of nine were made by members at the subsequent practice, but were not allowed to count in the competition, as by the rules only the first shot counts. The following is list of scores:

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NECESSARY DISCLAIMER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

DEAR SIR,—As I find that I am very generally credited with responsibility for the report you gave of the last Volunteer Concert, I should be glad if you would give publicity to the fact that this is not so. I have not yet written criticisms of any of the musical events of this Colony; although I have been asked, I have no intention of doing so.—Very faithfully yours,

EUROPEAN PEACE.

POLITICAL QUESTIONS BROACHED BY KING AND KAISER.

August 20th.

A remarkable article has been published in the Norddeutsche regarding the meeting at Kronberg of King Edward and the Kaiser, which it characterized as another stage on the road towards the improvement of the relations of the peoples, the Governments and Rulers of Britain and Germany. It stated that serious political questions were broached during the free and friendly conversations that took place at Kronberg, and added: "We know full well that this was done in a spirit which will have the effect of further consolidating European peace."

JAPANESE LOAN.

August 21st.

M. Takahashi, the Vice-Governor of the Bank of Japan, will proceed to England and America to negotiate for a loan of 80,000,000 yen, the cost of certain enterprises in Manchuria, and also, if possible, to negotiate for a reduction of the interest on the old loan.

FRUITS OF THE COMMISSION.

INSPECTOR WARD COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

The hearing of the charges of bribery and attempting to obstruct the course of justice, preferred against Inspector Francis Ward, of the Sanitary Department, was concluded before Mr. F. A. Hazeland at the Police Court yesterday afternoon.

Mr. F. B. L. Bowley, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, and Mr. E. J. Grist (of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist) appeared for defendant.

Mr. A. Carter, Sanitary Surveyor, was called. He said—On March 1st, 1904, defendant was appointed as a district sanitary inspector, and was placed in charge of No. 5 district.

Chan Pui, sworn, said—I live at No. 2, Water Street, which is my family house. I am the owner and lessee of several latrines in Hongkong. One is at No. 3, Sai To Lane, one at 29, First Street and one at 2, Gough Street. My son, Chan Tsun, manages these latrines. Account books with regard to them are kept by my son, who also receives the money from the collectors. He likewise sees that the hawking or repairing of the latrines is carried out. On June 22nd I was summoned to attend the Commission and take my books. This (produced) was the subpoena served on me by a European sergeant. My son was not in the house at the time. After I was served I went to the Detective Office with my books, and afterwards to the Commission. I have no partners in the latrine business. I and my son are the only two persons interested in it. I know the defendant, who is a sanitary inspector. He called at my house on June 23rd at about 7 p.m. Prior to that time I had seen him passing my door. When he called, a man named Wong came with him. They both entered and sat down. The defendant spoke in English, and Wong acted as interpreter. No one else was present. The interpreter interpreting for defendant said—"Tell your son to go to the country, then there will be no trouble. I will look after your latrines." Wong then said—"It is written in the book that money has been given to the inspector (defendant). That was the reason they wanted my son to go away. When they were going away the defendant shook hands with me and said 'Chin-chin.' He also said, in Chinese—'If your son goes away I will look after your latrines.' I said in reply—'Yes, please you look after me.'"

Mr. Bowley—Were you pleased at the suggestion that your son should go away to the country?

Mr. Grist—His impressions are not evidence, your Worship, one way or the other.

Mr. Bowley—Were you willing that your son should go away?

Mr. Grist again objected.

Mr. Bowley—I submit it is evidence, your Worship.

His Worship allowed the question.

Witness—No.

Mr. Bowley—Did you send him away to the country?

Witness—No.

Continuing, witness said—I saw defendant on June 25th at the latrine in Sai Po Lane. I was sent for by Lo Long-hing, the person in charge of that latrine. This was about 9 a.m., and I was then in my house, which is next door to the latrine. I met the defendant at the entrance to the lane. He was alone. He spoke to me in Chinese and said—"Your son has not yet gone away. Send him away." I replied—"They have not yet asked me. When they do ask me I will see about it." I did not send my son away, and defendant did not speak to me again. I gave evidence before the Commission on July 2nd.

Lo Long-hing, declared, said—I am in charge of Chen Pui's latrine at No. 2 Sai Po Lane. I was first employed by Chen Pui in June, 1906, and have been there ever since. Defendant is the latrine inspector. He called to inspect sometimes once every day, and sometimes once in two or three days. At times he called by himself and again he would have an interpreter with him. He told me once to call my master. On June 25th, after inspecting the latrine, he asked me where the master was. I said—"My master is at his family house." He asked me to go in and tell him to come out, which I did. My master came and spoke to the defendant at the entrance to the lane. I did not hear what was said. On this occasion defendant spoke to me in Chinese. I do not understand English, and have been in the Colony only three or four months.

Chief Detective-Inspector J. W. Hanson said—I arrested defendant under the warrant produced on the 15th instant at No. 1, Chater Street. I know the branch office of the Sanitary Board on Taktulam Road, and the defendant's house. In going from the office to his house the defendant would pass within about twenty paces of Chen Pui's door.

This ended the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Grist—I propose to reserve my defence, and address your Worship very shortly, principally with reference to the sixth charge. Apart from all the questions of fact in the matter, that is no offence against the Common Law, nor is it an offence against any of the Ordinances. That being so, I should ask that that charge, at any rate, be dismissed.

Mr. Bowley—I submit that the charge is good in law. It is an offence against the Common Law to prevent witnesses attending to give evidence before a duly constituted tribunal. The Royal Commission was appointed by the Governor to enquire into the workings of the sanitary ordinances, and has all the powers and status of a court of justice.

His Worship, after referring to the authority quoted as he thought the offence would be "to incite a person to conspire with the defendant to pervert justice." He thought that would be a common law offence.

Mr. Grist—It would be if the Commission was not a private one, but being so it is a misconception entirely.

His Worship—On that point the evidence is Prima facie, and it is quite sufficient for me to send the case for trial.

Mr. Grist—I only put it forward to give my friend full notice. There is no question of perverting justice. The Commission is simply drawing up a confidential report not to be published.

His Worship—It is a common law offence to pervert justice; also a common law offence to incite another person to conspire with another person to pervert justice.

Defendant was committed for trial at the next Criminal Sessions. Bail as before.

WHOLESALE MURDER IN KWANGTUNG.

SUSPECTED MURDERER ARRESTED IN HONGKONG.

A blood-curdling story of crime in the turbulent province of Kwangtung was made known to the local police last week when the Chinese Government applied for the extradition of the alleged murderer. When the case comes before the Police Court, we believe the following details will be found fairly accurate. It appears that the tragedy occurred some time ago at Pichung village in the Nambui district. The most market in this village is said to be run by a company in which the alleged murderer was a shareholder.

At a rowdy meeting of shareholders the man under arrest is said to have shot another who strenuously opposed some proposition he brought forward at the meeting. The murderer, being a member of the most powerful clan in that district, was not called to task for his misdeed, it is said, because the villagers feared the vengeance of the clan. This first murder caused the most company to be dissolved, and a new company was formed, the name of the accused not being included in the list of shareholders. After a lapse of about two months, during which time the business was carried on profitably, the defendant appeared before the market armed with a Winchester repeater rifle. He fired two shots in the air, which brought the manager of the market out to learn the cause of the trouble. As soon as he appeared the defendant is alleged to have taken aim and fired at him. The manager fell down dead, being shot through the brain. Then the murderer turned and fired at an Indian watchman, the bullet entering his shoulder. The watchman promptly closed with the murderer, a fierce hand-to-hand encounter took place. A small boy engaged in the market, who had been a witness of the scene from the beginning, armed himself with a chopper and rushed to the watchman's assistance. He plied his weapon on the murderer's body and inflicted several nasty wounds. Then, when he saw the watchman being overpowered, he took to his heels. The defendant is alleged to have disembowelled the watchman, after which he fled, running in the direction of the river. When he arrived on the bank he hailed a sampan which was occupied by two women; there was also a baby lying on the deck. He asked the women to run alongside and take him aboard, but they, seeing he was covered in blood, refused. At this, the brute is alleged to have levelled his rifle and shot both. One of the women when shot, fell on the body of the child, which has since succumbed. The man then made good his escape and ultimately arrived at Hongkong. The wrath of the populace, however, when the full extent of his crimes became known, was sufficiently unanimous to move the magistrate to action, and the plan, of which the alleged murderer was a member, were threatened with extermination if they did not deliver him up. They took prompt steps, and as a result one of them traced him to Hongkong, and the next steps were taken to secure his arrest. A man was brought before Mr. H. H. J. Gompertz at the Police Court yesterday morning, when the Chinese Government applied for his extradition, and the case was remanded for a week.

SHOULD BRITAIN ANNEX SHANGHAI?

The history of the British settlement at Shanghai illustrates the extent to which a policy of drift may be carried when a Government allows events to shape their way without attempting to direct their course, writes the World's correspondent in the "Round The Empire" series of articles. Although British pioneers bore the whole burden of securing a footing in the Yangtze delta, their efforts have been largely neutralized by the persistent refusal of the British Government to afford the trading community of Shanghai the protection which was obtained at Hongkong by means of territorial annexation. To this day Shanghai remains, not a political possession, but a commercial settlement, in which the degrading machinery of Chinese sovereignty is inconveniently and immorally intermixed with the administrative procedure established by the European settlers for the self-government of their community. On two recent occasions rejected opportunities occurred for retrieving the errors due to past omission. The annexation of Weihaiwei in 1898 was an undignified reply to the high-handed seizure of Kiao-chau by Germany and of Port Arthur by Russia. Had Shanghai been annexed instead of Weihaiwei, a rich commercial prize would have been acquired by pacific arrangement, and all those complicated questions, which are daily becoming more and more acute, would have been settled by the establishment of British rule. Again, in 1900, had Great Britain, in the face of the Boxer troubles, declared her resolve to safeguard the lives and property of her subjects at Shanghai by annexing the settlement, which is hers by right of concession, the acquiescence of the other Powers could at that time have been counted on. Now that England is bound by treaty to maintain the territorial integrity of the Chinese Empire, the opportunity for establishing British sovereignty at Shanghai has passed away, never to recur unless circumstances, possibly not far distant, should restore to Great Britain that freedom of action which for the moment she has been compelled by political necessity to surrender.

CHILDREN OF FAR CATHAY.

A SOCIAL AND POLITICAL NOVEL OF ASIAN INTEREST.

By CHAS. J. HALCOMBE (Formerly of the Imperial Chinese Customs Service, Author of "The Mystic Flower Land," etc.)

THE VOLUME which consists of 481 Pages, and includes a Sketch Plan of historical interest showing the disposition of the Forces at the battle of Kwanlin, is dedicated to Sir ROBERT HART, G.C.M.G., and Dr. A. RENZI.

A Description of Chinese Social Customs and Superstitions, combined with the insight it gives into political conditions in China makes "CHILDREN OF FAR CATHAY" an excellent volume for presentation to friends at home.

Well bound in Yellow Cloth with Chinese Emblem in Gold.

Price $3.50.
